Par-formance®, The Golf Score Journal works on an individual basis for a golfer as a reference to rounds played and to track your game from tee to green. Par-formance® provides a golfer the added value of a detailed journal to record scores and to chart progress and improvement. By visually seeing your results, it will allow you to focus on your strengths and weaknesses. Use Par-formance® as you play or later when you review your round. It is a different discipline for scoring a round and is ideal for golfers of all skill levels. Par-formance® is a great educational reference with the 2008 - 2011 “Golf Rules in Brief” reprinted with the permission of the United States Golf Association®. The following are the journal’s five sections:

Goal Section - A statement of current and desired goals

Scoring Section - Allows a golfer to record twenty rounds per journal providing a complete snapshot of their round by referencing courses played, playing partners, weather conditions, clubs used per hole.

Chart Section - Records and measures consistency and accuracy of fairways / greens in regulation / putts / penalty strokes / total score / averages and statistics for all twenty rounds

Notes Section - To keep notes on lessons and or instruction

Rules Section - A summary of some of the principle “Golf Rules in Brief” reprinted with the permission of the United States Golf Association® and the Royal and Ancient Golf Club of St. Andrews

Par-formance® is made durable to last for the complete twenty rounds through all conditions of weather and play. The journal is 72 pages, which will change the way a golfer will look at his score. It develops better course management and is an excellent reference for tournament play.

Par-formance®, The Golf Score Journal is published by the Harvey Publishing Group and is a Licensee of the United States Golf Association®. Par-formance® is sold to country clubs, pro-shops, golf stores, gift companies, golf schools, to both high school and college golf teams, to PGA teaching professionals, and to individuals through the website, www.par-formance.com.
